Monica Knight Ph.D. (ABD)

Early in her remarkable career, Monica was reluctant to describe herself as a “motivational speaker” feeling this implied that she knew the right way for others to embrace the joys of life.

Now, after years of plentiful evidence and positive feedback that her words, personal examples and unique presentation style have inspired and “motivated” individuals, groups and communities – she has embraced this gift and acknowledges that, when many sing her praises...

invigorating
vibrant creative memorable*

*everyone needs “a little bit of Monica in their lives”!...

Whether being awed by Monica’s compassion at one of her at risk youth projects, experiencing her speak at a conference on economic development, or joining her as she dances joy at a women’s conference, you will be struck by the authenticity, sheer dynamism and oratory gifts of this unusual “academic”.

Monica is an experience! She dances her presentations, makes people do and learn things that they never imagined themselves doing or learning. She is one of the most creative teachers I have ever witnessed in my over 40 years in education. Her audiences/ students always leave energized, invigorated and astounded at the experience. – Cyril Kesten, Ph.D., Professor of Education, University of Regina
